Pow Wow – 2003

Dear Cub Scout Leader,

Welcome to Pow Wow, 2003. The time you will spend at the Pow Wow, or at the computer reading over the great ideas from Pow Wow, 2003, will save you days of research, and will make your job in Scouting more satisfying.

There are many things you could do for your family; Scouting is something you can do with your family. We hope that Pow Wow will enrich those experiences with your family. Please, enjoy yourself at Pow Wow, and take full advantage of the opportunity to learn from - and to learn with - other Cub Scout leaders.

On behalf of all of the Scouts who will benefit from your volunteer activities, Thank you!

Yours in Scouting,

Frank Erickson, Scout Executive/CEO

January, 2003

Dear Scouters,

Although this isn't the broad, expanded version of the Pow Wow Book I envisioned when I agreed to be the editor a second year, I expect it will prove to be a useful resource (even if you might come across a few items that'll make you wonder, "What was she thinking?!!!"). While I sincerely believe we humans never stop learning (what would be the point of Pow Wow if we did?), this doesn't seem to have been the year when I learned to overcome procrastination....

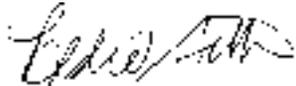

The good news is as follows:

- I was able to draw on some new sources of information;
- Wesley Wong made even more contributions;
- Sakiko & Phil Wehrman's (extended?) family graciously updated the Field Trips; and,
- Some of the instructors made contributions which add weight and value!

My heartfelt appreciation to all of them.

Again, I encourage the participants to take advantage of all the Scouting resources available to help make doing a great job both fun and rewarding. Thank you for your devotion to making this invaluable program available to the boys of our council. If, during the year, I can provide any assistance to you, please contact me.

Sincerely,

Leslie Gibbons
