CUB SCOUT TRAINER WOOD BADGE

HISTORY OF WOOD BADGE

In 1911, four years after the Scouting program began in England, Baden-Powell began training Scouters by using a series of lectures. Subsequently, the first Wood Badge training course for Scoutmasters was held at Gilwell Park eight years later. In 1936 an experimental Wood Badge course was conducted at Schiff Scout Reservation. Then in 1948, the first American Wood Badge course was introduced in the United States as advanced training for trainers of Scout leaders. later, the course was extended to include troop committee members and commissioners. In 1972, the National Cub Scout Committee responded to a need for an advanced training course for Cub Scouting. A trainer-oriented experimental course was developed and field tested at Mentone, Alabama, in 1976. Subsequent courses were held in each region. Final approval by the National Executive Board came in October 1979. This action established Cub Scout Trainer Wood badge as the official advanced training program for trainers in Cub Scouting.

PURPOSE

The Cub Scout Trainer Wood Badge course develops council and district trainers so that they can provide effective administration and implementation of Cub Scout leadership training, thus ensuring a quality Cub Scout program.

CURRICULUM

The course begins with an intensive review of Cub Scouting's principles and ideals, recognizing and using available resources, communication skills, and planning techniques. Throughout the course participants are involved in implementing these skills and developing the ability to work together as a group. Participants attend sessions that cover training and leadership skills. Many ideas in visual aids and delivery techniques are demonstrated. The course includes nature sensitivity, reverence to God, songs, recognition, games, ceremonies, enthusiasm, and fun.

QUALIFICATIONS

The participant must be a registered adult who is active in Cub Scouting, recommended by the council, and approved by the region. He or she must have completed Cub Scout leader basic training, Train the Trainer, and must be a trainer or potential trainer.

GOALS

Cub Scout Trainer Wood badge course participants learn special leadership skills, a basic understanding of Cub Scout principles, communication with people, event planning, and how to use the resources at hand. They also develop a "ticket." This "ticket" is a written agreement to apply knowledge gained during the course in specific ways while fulfilling a commitment of training service to Cub Scouting. It involves a series of personal goals the participants set for themselves for a period of from six months to two years following the course. Only after the personal goals have been met and a list of study questions completed does the Cub Scout trainer receive the Wood badge recognition. Application is made through the regional office

RECOGNITION

Completion of the Wood Badge requirements for any Wood Badge course entitles the recipient to a parchment certificate, the Wood Badge beads (two wooden beads on a leather thong), a mauve neckerchief with a swatch of McLaren tartan, and a leather woggle or neckerchief slide.

SUMMARY

Cub Scout Trainer Wood Badge is having fun with a purpose. That purpose is the development of knowledgeable, skilled, and enthusiastic trainers to ensure the delivery of a quality program for Cub Scouts and Webelos Scouts.
